We are Not Exterior Decorators - Landscape Architecture's Virtuous Cycles

- In the past landscape architecture was reduced to beautification or 'greening' but the climate crisis impels us to be ecological in all our design decisions
- Weaving new natures that treat waste as a resource into our cityscapes to realize opportunities for an sustainable, functional and beautiful landscapes
- Beauty has a function beyond simple enjoyment and humans have biological needs for experiences with nature which we must also concern ourselves with
- Through an exploration of recent projects that combine cyclical ecological utility and beauty the presentation will outline a role for landscape architecture that achieves artful landscapes that serve ecological ends

Martha Schwartz, Senior Partner, Martha Schwartz Partners
